

Purpose

The Port of Albany strives to be a leader in environmental sustainability and to conduct activities in a manner that are environmentally responsible, community-driven, and economically beneficial.

Applicability

In 2016, the Port of Albany was the first port in New York State to volunteer and certify in the Green Marine program. The Green Marine Program is an environmental certification program for the North American marine industry that includes environmental performance measurements. These Guidelines apply to any Procurement Contract entered into pursuant to the provisions of Section 2824 of the NYS Public Authorities Law.

Policy

It is the intent of the Port of Albany to remain committed to implementing measures that support or enhance the Green Marine Program performance measurement indicators. The Port will continue its environmental stewardship through the use of green procurement and sustainable management practices where possible.
